

TRACING LINES 2

Do you want to learn to write nicely and correctly? These exercises can help you. Draw over the shapes first, and then draw the same shapes until the end of the line. Draw the shapes in the direction of arrows. The direction of drawing is important for nice and fluent handwriting. Try to use correct tilt and height of shapes.

The handwriting practice sheet consists of 10 rows, each with a solid line and an arrow indicating the direction of drawing, followed by a dashed line for tracing, and a dotted line for independent practice. The exercises are as follows:

- Row 1: Downward slanted line (arrow pointing down-left), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 2: Downward slanted line (arrow pointing down-left), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 3: Upward slanted line (arrow pointing up-right), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 6: Downward slanted line (arrow pointing down-left), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 7: Upward slanted line (arrow pointing up-right), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 8: Upward slanted line (arrow pointing up-right), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 9: Downward slanted line (arrow pointing down-left), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
- Row 10: Downward slanted line (arrow pointing down-left), followed by a dashed line and a dotted line.
