

TRACING LINES 3

Do you want to learn to write nicely and correctly? These exercises can help you. Draw over the shapes first, and then draw the same shapes until the end of the line. Draw the shapes in the direction of arrows. The direction of drawing is important for nice and fluent handwriting. Try to use correct tilt and height of shapes.

The handwriting practice sheet is organized into four rows, each with three horizontal lines. The first row contains a large triangle with a directional arrow on its left side, followed by a dashed triangle, and then a series of dots on the middle line. The second row contains a smaller triangle with a directional arrow, followed by a dashed triangle, and then a series of dots. The third row contains a zigzag line with a directional arrow, followed by a dashed zigzag line, and then a series of dots. The fourth row contains a larger zigzag line with a directional arrow, followed by a dashed zigzag line, and then a series of dots.
